Certification of the Record

1. Accreditation Standards

Observers are admitted only after identity verification, party-affiliation screening, and a forty-hour certification course covering collation law, arithmetic verification, and evidence handling. Accreditation is personal, non-transferable, and revoked upon any breach of the non-partisanship covenant.

Screening is repeated each cycle. An observer accredited in one cycle holds no presumption of renewal; the roster at Annex A reflects only currently accredited personnel.

2. Deployment Model

Each collation center is assigned a minimum of two observers on staggered shifts, with no observer stationed in their district of residence. A roving audit team reinspects a random eight percent of centers each cycle.

The model is deliberately redundant: loss, intimidation, or compromise of any single channel degrades coverage but never blinds it.

3. Redundant Reporting Protocol

Observers transmit sheet photographs through two independent channels - the registry application and a signed fallback mail gateway. Every transmission is hashed at receipt and chained; the ledger makes post-hoc insertion or deletion evident to any auditor.

Where both channels fail, observers are trained to preserve evidence physically and deliver it to the roving audit team under a documented handover, which is then logged as a delayed intake with the reason recorded.

ANNEX B

Training Curriculum Summary

The forty-hour certification comprises twelve hours of collation law, ten hours of arithmetic verification drills against historical sheets, eight hours of evidence handling and chain-of-custody procedure, six hours of personal safety and de-escalation, and four hours of supervised field assessment.

Assessment is pass/fail with a single resit. In the current cycle 71 percent of candidates passed at first sitting; the registry regards a demanding threshold as a feature of the system, not a recruitment failure.

ANNEX C

Revocation and Appeals Register

Seven accreditations were revoked during the cycle: four for undeclared party affiliation, two for transmission of unverified material to media, and one for falsified field logs. Each revocation was issued with written reasons; two appeals were heard and one revocation was reduced to a formal warning. The register of revocations is published in hashed form to balance transparency with the dignity of the individuals concerned.
